Despite these challenges, she refused to let her circumstances dictate her future. Through hard work, determination, and a relentless pursuit of her dreams, Paulina has become an award-winning author, sought-after speaker, and a beacon of inspiration for countless people around the world.

Early Life and Struggles

Paulina was born in a small village in Poland in 1972. Her family lived in a cramped apartment with no running water or indoor plumbing. Despite these hardships, Paulina's parents instilled in her a strong work ethic and a belief in the power of education.

As a young girl, Paulina excelled in school. She was a top student in her class and dreamed of becoming a doctor. However, her dreams were shattered when she was diagnosed with a chronic illness that made it impossible for her to pursue a medical career.

Finding Her Path

Undeterred, Paulina refused to give up on her dreams. She enrolled in a local university and studied journalism. After graduating, she worked as a reporter for a small newspaper in her hometown. Although she enjoyed her work, Paulina knew that she was meant for something more.

In 2001, Paulina made the difficult decision to leave Poland and move to the United States. She arrived in New York City with only a few dollars in her pocket and a dream of making a better life for herself. Paulina struggled to find work at first, but she eventually found a job as a waitress.

While working as a waitress, Paulina began writing about her experiences as an immigrant in America. She wrote about the challenges she faced, but she also wrote about the hope and opportunity that she found in her new country. Her writing caught the attention of a publisher, and in 2006, she published her first book, "Choices Fighting Fate."
